

Frazier's Wagon Factory on 8th street. The original building was built by the Union Army and was used to manufacture wagons during the civil war to transport supplies from the railroad to points further west and south. (Photo courtesy of the Phelps County Museum)

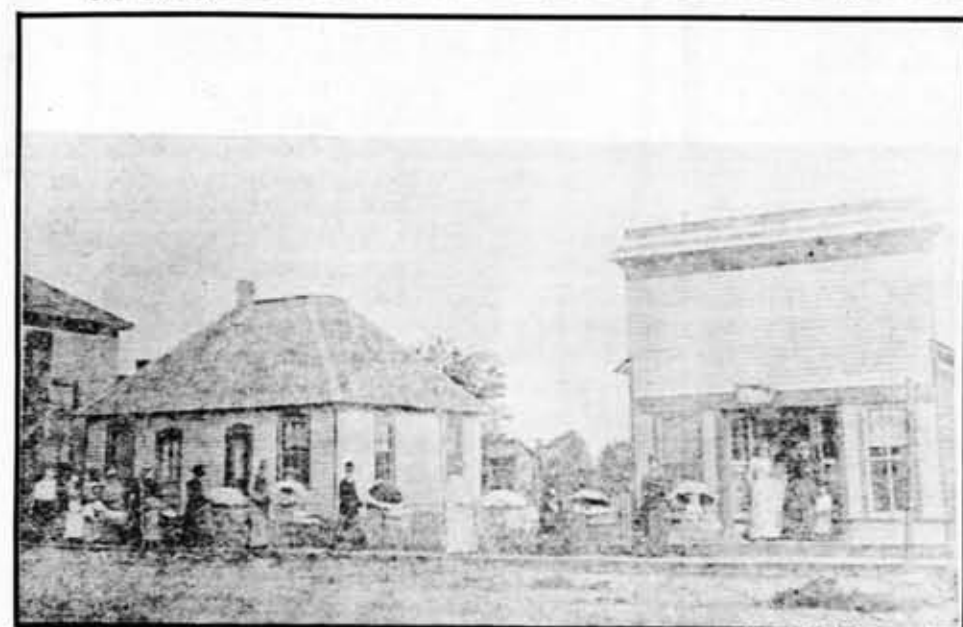

From atop the bluff at Jerome looking at the highway and railroad bridges. (Photo courtesy of the Western Historical Manuscript Collection)

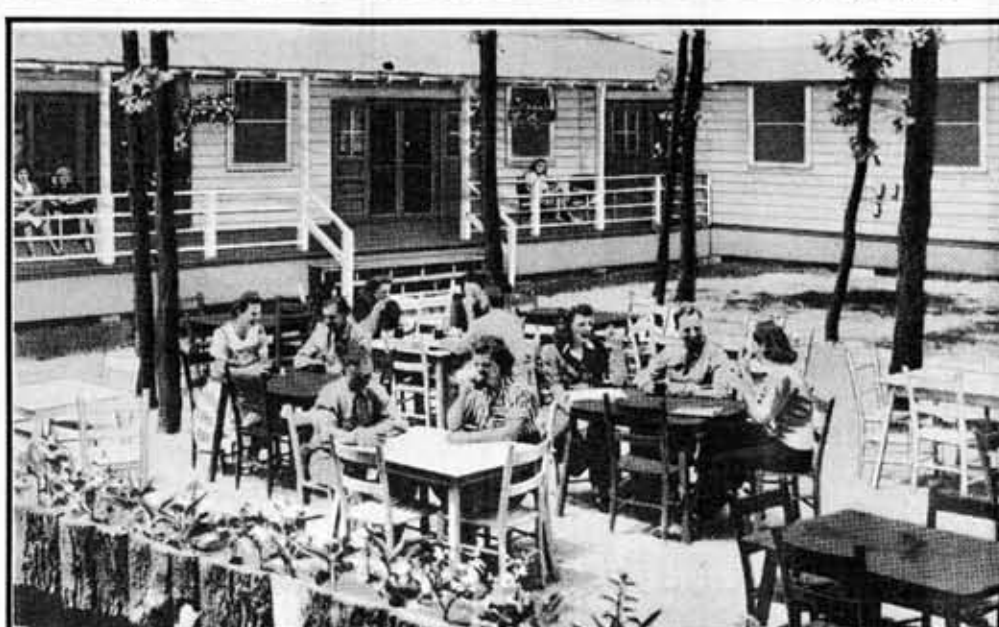

Businesses from left to right include Rhea's Mercantile, Dry Goods and Saddlery in Dixon, Missouri. The building is located across from the present State Bank of Dixon. (Photo courtesy of Earl and Anna Roberts)

The post office, dentist and Rolla Times newspaper were located on Campbell Block in Rolla, Missouri. (Photo courtesy of Earl and Anna Roberts)

A parade of baby carriages marches along the street in Richland, Missouri in 1891. (Photo courtesy of Naomi Rosalyn Wrinkle Spring)

This 1951 postcard shows the service club garden at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. (Photo courtesy of Earl and Anna Roberts)