WATER - Wearing drop-by-drop so slowly that progress could not be detected in the span of a human life, has hollowed out, built up and adorned, under the earth's surface several hundred feet, a cavern so vast and beautiful that man's mind cannot conceive of it. Limitless time of nature's work has made it; ages ago and still continues. There is no estimate as to its actual size, although more than twelve miles of passages and chambers have been explored.
